C Listening

You are going to listen to a customer who is visiting Everest Stores, a large department store in her town. She is speaking to a store assistant in the information booth on the first floor (see the diagram below).

As you listen the first time, mark on the floor plan where the customer wants to go and in which order she will move around the store.

D Game

You are going to play a speaking & memory game called "I went to Everest Stores".

Your teacher will divide the class into groups.

Listen very carefully to what the other students say!

Teacher Notes

Target Language:	Shopping & Shops, Listening
Duration:	45 minutes
Listening File Required:	1L9

1 Structure and Timing (all times approximate)

- A. Warmer (10 minutes)
- B. Vocabulary (10 minutes)
- C. Listening (15 minutes)
- D. Game (10 minutes)

Total: 45 minutes.

2 Procedure

A. Warmer

This warmer is to get students thinking about some shopping vocabulary. The names of the shops where these products are bought will vary depending on whether you are teaching in the UK, the US, Australia and so on. Here are some suggested answers:

florist, clothing store, butcher, hardware store, electronics store, music store, winery, jeweler's, bakery, bookstore, grocery store, newsstand.

If you want to make this part of the lesson more enjoyable for a stronger class, you can turn it into a memory game (their memories will also be challenged in the final part of today's lesson). Ask the students to look at the selection of products for a set time limit, say, 2 minutes. Then divide the class into teams and then ask them to write the shops where these products would be bought, which makes this not only a pure memory game but also good for vocabulary.

B. Vocabulary

You can use this as an opportunity to do some dictionary work with your students – using only monolingual dictionaries.

Answer Key

Word	Definition
Wedding	Ceremony where two people get married.
Toaster	Something that produces toasted bread.
Appliance	Tool or electrical instrument.
Escalator	Moving stairs.
Framing	Service that puts wooden border around pictures.
Kitchen range	Used for cooking and baking food. Often large.
Stool	High chair, often without a back.

C. Listening

For this listening, you will need the mp3 file 1L9 found in the Listening Bank of the Premium site. The PDF of the transcript can also be found there.

The first listening exercise involves a visual representation of the customer's route through the department store. The students will probably not have much difficulty identifying where she intends to go but may have problems correctly numbering in order the places she will visit, mainly because she makes a final decision based on her need to go straight up to the 6th floor for the chair.

For the second part, there are six multiple-choice questions. Get students to compare their answers in pairs and talk about why they chose the answer they selected before you correct this exercise.

Answer Key

The customer visits these parts of the department store in this order:

- ❑ 6th Floor: Home Furnishing – for the chair.
- ❑ 4th Floor: Small Kitchen Appliances – for the toaster.
- ❑ 4th Floor: Large Kitchen Appliances – for information about the fridge-freezer.
- ❑ 2nd Floor: Music & Movies – for the DVD for her daughter and the CD for herself.
- ❑ 1st Floor: Women's Hats – for the hat for her sister.

Multiple Choice Answers:

1. B – she says it's her first time.
2. C
3. A – it caught fire.
4. A – toaster and price of fridge-freezers.
5. C
6. B

D. Game

This is a simple chain story memory game. Divide your class into two or three groups. Ask the students to give you a sentence following the following model:

I went to Everest Stores and I bought a x from the y floor.

They will need to use the floor plan in order to fill in the "x" and "y" values correctly. The next student, on another team, has to repeat this first sentence and add one of their own. And so on.

Example:

I went to Everest Stores and I bought a model train from the 5th floor, a kilo of bananas from the 3rd floor, a cactus from the 1st floor, a tie from the 3rd floor and a large table from the 6th floor.
